

Dear international students!

From April 6th, you will be switched to the DISTANCE LEARNING on biochemistry. In order for the current class to be counted, you are supposed to write a 3-page outline of the class, containing answers to the questions listed in the training guidelines to the appropriate class. These notes will be revised by your teacher after the end of the distance learning period.

The form of the mini-exam on “Lipid metabolism” will be announced later.

Reworks of missed classes and re-examinations on mini-exams will be conducted after the end of the distance learning period.

If you have questions on training you can contact your teachers through the e-mail addresses available on the department website (Russian and English version).

Detailed instruction on the organization of biochemical classes and especially the class “Lipids-4” is shown in the video below.

You should also draw (not print!) the scheme of Lipid Metabolism, using the template available on the department website.
