

THE LIST OF PRACTICAL SKILLS
ON PUBLIC HEALTH AND PUBLIC HEALTH SERVICES
Medical faculty for international students

The student in the course of subject studying should get skills:

- Scheduling, programming of medical-statistical research of population health, activity of medical-preventive organizations and doctors;
- Applications of statistical, historical, economic methods and computer facilities at studying and forecasting of indicators of population health, in an estimation of activity of public health services, in definition of efficiency of medical-preventive actions;
- To count and estimate: the relative and standardized indicators, average sizes, reliability of results of statistical research;
- Estimations of public health on the basis of calculations and the analysis of demographic indicators, morbidity and physical inability indicators;
- Abilities to use the ICD-10th revision;
- Constructions of graphic representations of results of statistical research;
- Estimations of quality indicators of activity of medical-preventive organizations;
- Estimations of model of ultimate results of a protection service of motherhood and the childhood;
- Correct filling of the basic registration forms of the medical documentation;
- Uses of instructive-methodological materials in the decision of questions of medical labour examination and registration of the corresponding documentation certifying time and proof sickness absence from work;
- Realization of the bibliographic description and processing of references, registrations of the list of the literature.